Scientific Study from the year 2009 in the subject Business economics - Trade and Distribution, , language: English, abstract: In this scientific paper, it is about to prove that higher perceived product quality needs less advertisement to be sold. The reader will find theoretical sources as well as an own empirical finding. In this the effect of "Stiftung Warentest" on the customers purchase decision will be proved. At the end, it comes out that customer's decision for or against a product is also depends on seals of quality even if they never heard about this product before. That means if a product reaches good test results (e.g. in a product test about sun lotions by Stiftung Warentest), sales should increase while displaying that seal of quality on the package true to the motto: good products sell themselves.

Patrick Bergeron:

As a university student exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher expected them to go to the library in order to make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's spirit or real their pastime. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring and also can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this era, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore , this Does a higher perceived product quality need less advertisement to be sold? can make you really feel more interested to read.
